Explanations of policies for each "yes" checked above:

The Choctaw Nation, in determining the level of assistance to eligible households, has designed a Point Matrix System to effectively target the neediest households living at or under the program's income guidelines. This system of determining levels assures that the households most in need of assistance receive the highest benefits; the highest level of energy assistance is provided to households with the lowest income and the highest energy costs in relation to income, considering family size. No household is guaranteed a certain amount of assistance.

Determination of Benefits 2605(b)(5) - Assurance 5, 2605(c)(1)(B)

2.4 Describe how you prioritize the provision of heating assistance tovulnerable populations, e.g., benefit amounts, early application periods, etc.

The Tribe's LIHEA Program recognized vulnerable households as categorically eligible and prioritizes them for services. The factors employed by the Point Matrix System formula provides flexibility to match energy assistance to energy need, incorporating variables and calculations that assure increased levels of assistance to the neediest.

Prioritized treatment includes early screening of applications, rapid distribution of program benefits, and higher benefit payments, with reference to the Point Matrix System of benefit determination.

2.5 Check the variables you use to determine your benefit levels. (Check all that apply):

Family (household) size
Home energy cost or need:
Fuel type
Climate/region
Individual bill
Dwelling type

Energy burden (% of income spent on ho	ome energy)

Other - Describe:
The Tribe's LIHEAP Program awards higher benefit awards for those requesting assistance with propane due to the high cost of the fuel type. The energy need and individual bill is used to determine benefit amounts, the type of requested assistance determines what the benefit amount is. The individual bill provides the information needed to process an application, information such as the vendor, account number and service address are included on the individual bill.
