Obligation

YST has the following in place to assure that the program funds are spent according to the guidelines: 1. Client eligibility 2. Cross references for payments

Expenditures

In the context of the YST Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP), expenditures refer to the financial outlays made by the program to assist eligible low-income households in covering their home energy costs. These expenditures typically include:

1. Payments to Energy Providers: Direct payments to utility companies or fuel suppliers for heating and cooling costs on behalf of eligible households.
2. Crisis Assistance Costs: Funds allocated to address emergency situations, such as utility shut-offs or fuel shortages, to prevent harm to vulnerable households.
3. Program Administration Costs: Expenditures related to the management and administration of the LIEAP program, including staffing, outreach, and operational expenses.
4. Weatherization Costs: Expenses related to energy-saving improvements in homes to reduce overall energy consumption and costs, which may include insulation, heating system repairs, and other efficiency upgrades.

Expenditures are used to ensure that households can maintain safe and affordable energy access, especially during extreme weather conditions.

Expenditure timeframe

In the context of the Yankton Sioux Tribe Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP), the expenditure time frame refers to the specific period during which program funds are available and must be utilized to cover eligible energy-related costs. This time frame typically includes:

1. Annual Funding Cycle: The period in which LIEAP funds are allocated, often aligning with the fiscal or calendar year. This time frame defines when the program can begin distributing funds to eligible households for heating, cooling, or energy assistance.
2. Eligibility Window: The time period during which households can apply for and receive assistance. Payments and support are provided within this frame to address energy costs for heating or cooling during peak seasons (e.g., winter heating or summer cooling months).
3. Deadline for Expenditures: A final date by which all allocated funds must be spent or obligated. Unused funds after this deadline may need to be returned or reallocated based on federal or tribal guidelines.

The expenditure time frame ensures that funds are used within designated periods to assist low-income households with energy needs efficiently.

Administrative costs

In the context of the Yankton Sioux Tribe Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP), administrative costs refer to the expenses incurred in managing and operating the program. These costs are necessary to ensure the effective delivery of services to eligible households. Administrative costs typically include:

1. Staffing and Salaries: Wages, benefits, and other compensation for employees responsible for processing applications, managing funds, and overseeing program operations.
2. Training and Professional Development: Costs related to training staff, such as workshops or conferences (e.g., NEUAC training), that improve their ability to manage and implement the program.
3. Office Supplies and Equipment: Expenses for supplies, technology, and other resources required to run the program efficiently, including computers, software, and telecommunications.
4. Program Outreach and Communication: Costs associated with promoting the program to eligible households, including advertising, printing materials, and hosting community information sessions.
5. Audit and Reporting: Fees for ensuring compliance with federal or tribal regulations, including costs for audits, financial reporting, and maintaining program accountability.

Administrative costs are essential for the efficient operation of the LIEAP program, ensuring compliance with regulations and the proper distribution of funds to those in need.

Audit Process

10.2. Is your LIHEAP program audited annually under the Single Audit Act and OMB Circular A - 133?

Yes No

10.2a - if yes, describe your auditor selection process.

Yes, the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), including the Yankton Sioux Tribe LIEAP program, is typically subject to an annual audit under the Single Audit Act and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-133 when federal funds exceed a specific threshold (currently $750,000). Here's how the audit process generally works:

1. Audit Requirement Under the Single Audit Act and OMB Circular A-133 (now incorporated into 2 CFR Part 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements), any entity receiving a substantial amount of federal financial assistance, such as LIHEAP, must undergo an audit if the total federal funds exceed the annual threshold.
 2. Audit Process Overview-Selection of Auditor: An independent auditor, usually a Certified Public Accountant (CPA), is hired to conduct the audit. The auditor must be qualified and knowledgeable about federal compliance regulations.
 - Audit Planning: The auditor develops an audit plan based on the nature and size of the federal program. The plan focuses on reviewing the program's financial statements, compliance with federal regulations, and internal controls.
 3. Review of Financial Statements The auditor examines the financial records of the Yankton Sioux Tribe LIEAP program, ensuring that funds were properly allocated and expended according to federal guidelines. This involves:
 - Verifying all expenditures, such as payments to vendors and assistance to households.
 - Ensuring that administrative costs are in line with federal regulations and limits.
 4. Compliance Testing The auditor tests whether the program complies with federal statutes, regulations, and terms and conditions of the grant award. This includes:
 - Verifying that the program has followed eligibility requirements.
 - Ensuring that energy assistance was provided to eligible low-income households as required.
 - Reviewing documentation to confirm that funds were spent within the appropriate expenditure time frame
 5. Internal Control Review The auditor evaluates the internal controls the Yankton Sioux Tribe LIEAP program has in place. This involves assessing procedures for safeguarding funds, processing applications, and making payments. Any weaknesses or areas for improvement are noted in the audit report.
 6. Audit Report After completing the audit, the auditor prepares a Single Audit Report, which includes:
 - A financial statement audit.
 - A schedule of expenditures of federal awards (SEFA), listing how funds were spent.
 - An assessment of compliance with federal regulations.
 - Findings or recommendations for improvements, if any.
 7. Follow-Up and Corrective Action If the auditor identifies areas of non-compliance or internal control weaknesses, the Yankton Sioux Tribe LIEAP program is required to take corrective actions. This could involve improving financial management practices or tightening internal controls to ensure compliance in future audits.
- This auditing process ensures transparency, accountability, and compliance with federal rules, helping to safeguard the integrity of the LIEAP program and the proper use of federal funds.

10.3. Describe any audit findings of the grant recipient (i.e. State/Tribe/Territory) rising to the level of material weakness or reportable condition cited in the single audits, inspector general reviews, or other government agency reviews from the most recently audited fiscal year.

10.4. Audits of Local Administering Agencies

What types of annual audit requirements do you have in place for local administering agencies/district offices?

10.6 Explain, or attach a copy of your local agency monitoring schedule and protocol.

To create a local agency monitoring schedule and protocol for the Yankton Sioux Tribe's Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP), you would need to outline a plan that ensures compliance with federal regulations, program guidelines, and internal policies. While I can't provide an exact copy, here's an overview of how a monitoring schedule and protocol might be structured:
Monitoring Schedule The monitoring schedule outlines the frequency and timeline for evaluating the LIEAP program's operations. It ensures that the program complies with federal and tribal requirements, and operates effectively. A typical schedule might include:

1. Quarterly Internal Reviews:Frequency: Every three months. Purpose: Conduct an internal review of financial records, application processing, and payments to ensure they are accurate and in line with program guidelines.
2. Annual External Audit: - Frequency: Once per fiscal year. Purpose: As required under the Single Audit Act, this ensures the program's financial statements and compliance with federal regulations are reviewed by an independent auditor.
3. Bi-Annual Site Visits by Tribal Oversight Committee:Frequency: Twice a year. - Purpose: Inspect operations, interview staff, and review applications to ensure LIEAP is operating effectively and providing services to eligible households.
4. Ad-Hoc Monitoring:Frequency:As needed. Purpose:Address specific concerns or risks that may arise, such as irregularities in fund allocation or complaints from program recipients.

Monitoring Protocol This section details the steps taken during each monitoring period to evaluate the program's performance.

1. Pre-Monitoring Preparation:Staff Training:Ensure all staff are trained on monitoring requirements, including compliance with the Yankton Sioux Tribe's LIEAP guidelines. - Data Compilation:Prepare relevant financial and programmatic data, including client application records, payment disbursements, and service logs.
2. On-Site Review or Documentation Review: - Eligibility Verification: Review a sample of applications to ensure recipients meet LIEAP criteria. - Payment Processing: Audit a portion of payment records to verify that funds are disbursed in compliance with program guidelines and within appropriate timelines.File and Documentation Review: Ensure all necessary documentation, such as proof of income and household composition, is on file.
3. Compliance Checklists: - Federal and Tribal Guidelines: Verify that the program operates in accordance with federal regulations (e. g., LIHEAP block grant guidelines), tribal policies, and any agreements with energy providers. - Administrative Costs: Ensure administrative costs, such as staffing and supplies, are in line with allowable limits and accurately reported.
4. Reporting and Feedback: Monitoring Reports: Compile findings into a report, noting any areas of non-compliance or need for improvement. - Corrective Action Plans: If issues are identified, create a plan for addressing the gaps or weaknesses in the program's operations. Ongoing Communication: Meet with program leadership to discuss monitoring results and follow up on corrective actions.
5. Post-Monitoring Follow-Up:Corrective Actions Implemented: Monitor whether recommended corrective actions have been successfully implemented, with follow-up checks on any identified issues. - Continuous Improvement: Use the findings from the monitoring process to improve the program's processes, policies, and services over time.

By following this schedule and protocol, the Yankton Sioux Tribe LIEAP program can ensure that it remains compliant with regulations, operates efficiently, and delivers vital services to eligible households in need of energy assistance.

10.7. Describe how you select local agencies for monitoring reviews. Attach a risk assessment if subrecipients are utilized.

Site Visits:

When selecting local agencies for monitoring reviews in the Yankton Sioux Tribe Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP), or any similar federally funded program, a structured approach is typically used to ensure that the most critical areas are monitored regularly. This process often involves risk-based assessments and regular reviews to ensure compliance and effective program management. If the program involves subrecipients (such as local agencies or other organizations helping to administer funds), additional scrutiny is given to these entities.

Selection of Local Agencies for Monitoring Reviews:

1. Risk Assessment Approach: The primary method for selecting agencies for monitoring reviews is based on a risk assessment. This assessment helps to identify agencies or subrecipients that are at higher risk of non-compliance or mismanagement of funds.
2. Factors Considered in Risk Assessment:Size of Funding: Agencies that receive larger portions of LIEAP funding may pose a higher risk, as any misuse or mismanagement could have a more significant impact. Previous Monitoring Findings: Agencies with past compliance issues or audit findings are prioritized for review to ensure corrective actions have been implemented. Agency Capacity: Small or understaffed agencies may face challenges in managing federal programs and could be more prone to errors or mismanagement. Changes in Staff or Leadership: Agencies that have recently undergone staff turnover, particularly in key positions like program managers or financial officers, are often selected for monitoring. Frequency of Fund Requests:Agencies or subrecipients that frequently request funds for disbursement may be selected to ensure proper documentation and justification for the requests. Length of Time Since Last Review: Agencies that have not been monitored recently or on a regular basis are prioritized for monitoring to ensure ongoing compliance.
- 3.Types of Monitoring:On-Site Monitoring: Agencies that pose higher risks are more likely to undergo on-site monitoring visits, where a comprehensive review of financial records, program documentation, and operations is conducted. Desk Reviews: For lower-risk agencies, a desk review (remote review of documentation) may be sufficient. This includes reviewing financial statements, payment records, and reports submitted by the agency. Follow-Up Reviews: Agencies that have previously been monitored and found to have compliance issues may be subject to follow-up reviews to ensure that corrective actions have been implemented.

If subrecipients are used, a formal risk assessment helps in determining the monitoring schedule and intensity of oversight for each subrecipient. This risk assessment is often updated annually or at key points during the grant cycle.

1. Pre-Monitoring Activities:Notification: Subrecipients are notified of an upcoming review, and a monitoring checklist is provided. Preparation of Documents: Subrecipients are required to submit financial records, program reports, and other relevant documentation before the review begins.

2. Monitoring Review: Financial Review: Examination of how subrecipients are managing and disbursing LIEAP funds, ensuring that expenditures align with approved budgets and program guidelines. Eligibility and Service Delivery: Reviewing applications and verifying that services are provided to eligible individuals in line with LIEAP regulations. - Compliance with Policies: Ensuring adherence to federal, state, and tribal requirements, including record-keeping, financial reporting, and programmatic performance. Internal Controls: Assessment of the internal controls in place to prevent fraud, waste, or abuse.

3. Post-Monitoring Follow-Up: Corrective Action Plan: If deficiencies are found, the subrecipient will be required to submit a plan to address and correct the issues within a specified timeframe. Ongoing Monitoring: High-risk subrecipients may be subject to additional monitoring to ensure compliance.

By using a structured risk assessment process and implementing consistent monitoring reviews, the Yankton Sioux Tribe can ensure that its LIEAP program and subrecipients are effectively managing funds, providing critical services to eligible households, and complying with all program requirements.

Desk Reviews:

Desk Reviews: For lower-risk agencies, a desk review (remote review of documentation) may be sufficient. This includes reviewing financial statements, payment records, and reports submitted by the agency. Follow-Up Reviews: Agencies that have previously been monitored and found to have compliance issues may be subject to follow-up reviews to ensure that corrective actions have been implemented.

10.8. How often is each local agency monitored? Please attach a monitoring schedule if one has been developed.
